WATERS STILL RISE.

Levees in Danger in Memphis

District—Refugees Have

Race for Life.

WASHINGTON, April 6.—After a talk with President Taft today, Maj.-Gen. Leonard Wood, Chief of Staff of the Army, predicted that more than 40,000 persons would be made homeless and more than 10,000 others would have to be provided with food as a result of the Mississippi River flood. Gen. Wood based his prediction on reports already received from army officers now in the field.

Secretary Silsby to-day sent from the War Department funds of $10,000 to each of the three officers of the Quartermaster's Department in the Mississippi flood district—Capt. Logan at Hickman, Ky.; Capt. Nernyale at New Madrid, and Capt. Hegeman, also on the Missouri side of the river. The money is to be used to buy rations for distributing flood victims.

The Red Cross is also giving aid and has agents in the flooded district looking after the sufferers.

The War Department will move as rapidly as possible to take care of the homeless and needy in the flooded districts. Brig.-Gen. Ramsay D. Potts, of Chicago, temporarily commanding the Central Division, will have charge of the distribution of supplies and time.

It was said to-day that probably many companies of United States troops eventually would have to be sent to the Mississippi Valley to assist in the distribution and to help preserve order. As Quartermaster Department officers in the field call for troops they will be despatched in small detachments.

Gen. Wood said the National Red Cross intended to send scores of settlement workers into the flooded country to help in caring for the homeless and also to see that those able to work do not impose on the Government's charity.

FLOOD SITUATION IS STILL CRITICAL.

While the trend of the danger zone in the Mississippi flood district moved southward this morning, yet the keenest attention was directed toward the Reelfoot Lake country in Tennessee which was inundated last night when the levee at Hickman, Ky., was breached.

Greatest anxiety centered in the question of life loss. In the 50 miles of inundated country of Northwest Tennessee hundreds of persons were forced to flee before the flood's rush. Advices received from several points in the affected district up to a late hour to-day indicate that the loss of life has been small, practically all of the farmers and villagers in the sweep of the tide having escaped. The only reports of death came from a farming district in Lake county. Two children are said to have been drowned when they fell from a boat.

Most of the Reelfoot refugees are at Tiptonville and Ridgely. They have been provided with shelter and now the State has been asked to send them food and clothing. Probably 2,000 of the homeless are gathered in the two towns. Rescue parties have set out in boats to search in persons who are marooned on houses and rafts.

The greatest pecuniary loss has been sustained in the drowning of cattle. Many farmhouses are under water, but the loss from this source will not mount high. There were no crops in the fields and planting had not been begun.

The situation in the lower Mississippi Valley continues critical. The flood strain was relieved somewhat by the levee's break at Hickman, but much of the water now flooding the Reelfoot country eventually will go back into the river. All main levees as far south as Arkansas were broken at noon. It is believed the tide can be controlled until it bursts into the gulf.

DEADS FINKELESTEIN AND ROBERT IN DEADLY STRUGGLE.

He found Finkelstein and Elsweig battling on the floor and had some difficulty in separating them. In the confusion Elsweig made a dash for liberty and almost got away. Then he attacked the policeman and was pretty well beaten up when he reached the station house. He refused to reveal the identity of the two men who escaped.

Today's attempt was the second that has been made recently to rob Finkelstein. On the night previous he pursued a thief who attempted to steal from the jeweler.

HOLD-UP MEN FIND TARTAR IN FIGHTIN' FINKELESTEIN-OI, OI!

Plucky Jeweller Captures Einweig, Who Is Not One-

Two in Fight.

Three men, two of them armed with revolvers, attempted to rob Harold Finkelstein, a Williamsburg jeweler, in his store at No. 29 Graham avenue, shortly before noon today. Finkelstein grabbed one of the would-be thieves and captured him, the others escaping after firing a fruitless shot. The prisoner gives the name of Jacob Elsweig, of No. 23 Goerck street, Manhattan.

Finkelstein's store is in the business shopping section of Williamsburg, a block from Broadway. He was alone behind a counter in the front of the store when Elsweig, a muscular, stocky young man entered. Elsweig handed Finkelstein a small woman's silver watch and asked that it be repaired. Finkelstein fixed a magnifying glass to his eye, opened the watch, examined it and said he could find nothing wrong with the works.

"It must be broken," said Elsweig, casting uneasy glances at the door. "It won't run."

Again Finkelstein turned his attention to the watch. At the signal from Elsweig two young men who had been standing in front of the show window stepped into the store, closed the door and drew revolvers. The noise of thunderous disturbance disturbed Finkelstein and he looked up from the watch.

The robbers were pointing at his head. Elsweig started around the counter.

"Throw up your hands!" shouted one of the armed invaders to Finkelstein.

GRAPPLES WITH THUG
BEARS HIM TO FLOOR.

The jeweler disregarded the command. With a wild yell for help he leaped upon Elsweig, seized him about the body and bore him to the floor in a space between two counters. His action was so unexpected that it confused the robbers. One of the men fired a wild shot from his revolver, which shattered the glass front of a clock hanging on the wall above where the jeweler had been standing.

The noise of the pistol shot attracted the attention of the passing throng and the armed crooks fled. As they rushed out of the store they howled over half a dozen men and boys who were crowding up to see what had happened. Dashing in and out along the crowded sidewalk the two fugitives ran through Graham avenue to Cook street and thence to Houston street, where they distanced the disorganized pursuit and disappeared. The chase for one of the men carried a revolver prominently displayed.

Meantime, Finkelstein had been hanging to Elsweig and Elsweig had been exerting himself to get away. The two men were fighting all over the floor of the jewelry store. Finkelstein pulling at the top of his voice. Although the hour was past, none of the spectators cared to enter. The street jammed up with excited people and Policeman Nolen of the Stagg street station, on traffic duty at the Broadway corner, a block away, ran down to investigate.

DIES OF FIST BLOW IN TURKISH BATH HOURS AFTER FIGHT

Patron Enters Fleischman's
With Only Apparent Hurt

a Discolored Eye.

Robert Johnson, a travelling salesman, fifty-two years old, died at 10 o'clock today in Fleischman's Bath, Forty-second street and Sixth avenue, of a fracture of the skull. A police search is being made for a young man who struck him and knocked him down in a fight outside the baths at about 1:30 o'clock this morning.

The theory is that Johnson's skull was fractured in the fight. Knowledge of the difficulty on the part of the police importuned to Capt. O'Connor of the East Fifty-first street police station by Thomas Malcom, a salesman, of No. 52 East Eighteenth street, Paterson, N. J., who spent the night with Johnson.

Both Johnson and Malcom were employed by A. W. Baylis Co., commercial merchants of No. 77 Franklin street. They were to start out on the road to-day and at last evening after leaving the store at the Compton Hotel, Chambers street and West Broadway.

According to Malcom, they remained at the hotel until after midnight, playing pool and taking a drink occasionally. It was too late for Malcom to go home so the pair decided to spend the night at Fleischman's baths and started up town together on the Sixth avenue.

"American Commissioners very acceptable," wrote OLYMPIADEN.

Olympiadén is the code address of the Swedish committee representing the Government in the promotion of the world-wide athletic carnival, so there is no doubt that the message comes from an official source.

Previous to the receipt of the message one of the men had circulated to the court that the Swedish Government was prepared to receive an American Commissioner, and curiously enough he succeeded in making President Taft believe the same way. The President naturally desired to appoint a commissioner.

Underground telephones evidently were employed throughout and the situation became badly muddled. Athletic clubs and athletes to a man have all along insisted on the appointment of James E. Sullivan as Commissioner to assist in the organization. Now things will continue where up to that President Taft will appoint Mr. Sullivan commissioner.

Starting Flight From Waters of Marblehead Bay.

MARBLEHEAD, Mass., April 6.—Another aviation fatality was narrowly avoided to-day when W. Sterling Burges, aviator and builder of one of the pioneers of the aviation game, was rescued by motor boat crews and fishermen when his hydro-aeroplane caught fire as he was about to ascend from the water in the middle of Marblehead Bay.

His engine back-fired, igniting the varnish on the left wing. Burges fought the blaze with a rubber coat while his machine rocked perilously on the waves.

Several motor boats and sailing craft rushed full speed to his aid and put out the blaze. The avier was towed ashore. The estimated damage to the machine was about $250.
